BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 22, 1930

THIRTY-NINTH YEAR No. 34

EFFORT EXERTED TO GAIN FISH HATCHERY FOR HANCOCK COUNTY FROM U. S.

Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce After Project Which Will Mean $20,000 Payroll.

Predicting the initiative on the fact Congress recently passed a bill appropriating $50,000 for the purpose, in which provisions make for the establishment of a fish hatchery in this section, one of no ordinary proportions, the Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, with its executive committee in special session Tuesday morning went on record going after the project for Hancock county.

Location Ideal
It was pointed out that Hancock county waterways are ideal for such hatchery as is proposed by the United States government and no where in this section can location water be found in suitable quality and quantity and certain conditions required.

Pay Roll Considerable
It was also pointed out that the location of the proposed fish hatchery in Hancock county would provide this section of a payroll of $20,000 per annum, minimum, a factor by no means to be overlooked.

Body Of Busy Bees
President George R. Rea, A. G. Favre, Leo W. Seal and Mayor Charles Traub, Sr., along with R. L. Genin are vitally interested in getting the hatchery located here and nothing will remain undone that may contribute towards the success of landing it.

George R. Rea, as president, was suggested as a committee of one to get busy in the premises and to file communications with the U. S. Department of Fisheries and also with Senator Pat Harrison and was assured co-operation of the Chamber membership.

Telegrams Talk.
The text of a letter dispatched to Senator Pat Harrison by President Rea follows:

"We just learned that Congress, at last session, appropriated $50,000.00 for the creation of a fish hatchery in southern Mississippi.

"We think Hancock county is the best location on account of its numerous streams and other advantages. May we ask your cooperation and assistance in this undertaking?"

"And this one to the Bureau of Fisheries, Washington, D. C.:
"We have received information that Congress appropriated $50,000.00 for the creation of a fish hatchery in southern Mississippi.

"Our county (Hancock) affords many natural advantages for the hatchery since we have many streams. Will you please furnish us any information you have in reference to locating said hatchery?"

To A. G. Favre, clerk of the courts of Hancock county, President Rea addressed this letter of thanks:

"We wish to thank you for your letter of the 18th, informing the Chamber of Commerce that Congress had appropriated $50,000.00 for the creation of a fish hatchery in Southern Mississippi.

"We are immediately writing to get the location of this hatchery in Hancock county. We assure you of our appreciation of your thoughtful cooperation."

TWENTY MILLION FANS ARE RIGHT, SAYS BAY ROTARY CLUB

Radio Cheer Leader Given Ovation at Rotary Club Wednesday—Says Cheer Up.

The Pep-O-Logue Man shouted "Cheer Up" at the Rotary Club luncheon given at the Western Hotel yesterday, and he shouted it in such a manner as to leave no doubt in the minds of his hearers that he meant it.

The Pep-O-Logue Man is a nationally-known writer and broadcaster of the Pep-O-Logue, popularly called the "Inspiration of a Nation." It is said that his messages of logic, filled with "cheer," have reached over twenty million radio fans.

This popular Radio Cheer Leader was given an ovation by the members of the Rotary Club when he said that hard times in the States are not the end of the world, the most stupid thing Uncle Sam had ever stood for, especially when the treasury reported over eight billions of liquid cash on hand.

He also stated, "When a certain philosopher said that 'The City of Happiness was in the State of Mind,' he was right. He said that the same time that the City of Prosperity was also in that identical State—that is, in the State of Mind." He further remarked that he felt sure that Bay St. Louis was prepared and willing to go into that State for the good of everybody concerned.

Bernard L. Knost, popular representative and attache of the firm of Hayden & Co., of Pass Christian, was host to a tarpon fishing party last week-end at Goose Point Tarpon Club. The guests included A. H. Myer, Wm. J. Lyman, and Hadyn Myer of Birmingham, Ala.; M. T. Reid of Belzoni, Miss.; Jack Carter, Chas. Knost, Richard Favrot, John Torreyson and P. L. Luck of New Orleans; J. P. McKay and H. M. Ludlow of Jackson; A. H. Gerald, New York City and E. J. McGurk of Pass Christian.

Mr. Reid after a long and strenuous fight landed a 75 pound tarpon that measured five and one-half feet in length.

W. A. McDONALD RETURNS FROM FIVE-WEEK TRIP TO SOUTH-WEST SECTION

Interesting Trip to Various Sections of Oklahoma and Texas—Meets Relatives Not Seen In Over Forty Years.

W. A. McDonald, well-known wholesale merchant, returned a few days since from a trip of the South-West territory that covered a period of five weeks. "The trip was purely a recreational one," said Mr. McDonald, "and in a sense was to see two aunts whom I had not seen in over forty years."

The visit to see these relatives was at Hastings, Oklahoma. One is Mrs. J. R. Stone, who resides in Phoenix, Arizona, and the other Mrs. W. A. Gatlin of McAllister, Oklahoma. There was also a cousin, W. A. Gatlin, of Lake View, Texas, whom Mr. McDonald had not seen and the happy reunion was held at the home of Mr. W. A. Stone, Hastings, a son of Mrs. Stone from Phoenix.

It had been agreed by correspondence the party would meet on either date of 20, 21 or 22 of June. As coincidence would have it, Mr. Gatlin, from Lake View, Texas and Mr. McDonald neither known one another practically met at the front gate of the Stone home on June 22, both arriving at precisely the same time.

Another coincidence is that the initials "W. A." featured quite conspicuously. Here was W. A. McDonald, W. A. Gatlin and W. A. Stone. Needless to say the reunion was most pleasurable and unforgettable.

Later Mr. McDonald continued his travels, and among other places visited at Amarillo, and Fort Worth, Texas, relatives at both places; San Antonio, then down into the famous Rio Grande valley.

McAllen is a beautiful town, he said. The citrus industry is the mainstay and grape fruit here grows to large proportions and make for a more palatable fruit than elsewhere.

BAY LEGION TO PRESENT PROGRAM

Minstrel and Other Numbers For Post Benefit—At High School, Friday, 29.

For the benefit of Clement R. Bon Temps Post, No. 139, Hancock county, a mammoth minstrel show, interspersed with a number of musical and dramatic numbers, will be presented at Bay High school Auditorium on Friday evening of next week, August 29.

Mr. W. B. Cook, well-known director residing at Gulfport, is staging the production and has collected material and formed a program that promises to exceed anything of the kind yet presented on the local stage. The minstrel olio alone will be composed of fifteen members, men who know how to sing, tell jokes and act their part. Mr. Cook expresses himself as well pleased with the outlook for one of the best of the kind yet produced.

Mr. L. Dickson, Bay resident and Legionnaire, is directing manager of the benefit and is also publicity manager, a task at which he is an adept and is already piling up results. Tickets are on sale at the Beach Drug Store.

An added feature will be the presence of the Legionnaire Gulfport drum and bugle corps, members of which will be here during the early part of the evening, parade and give an exhibition drill before the performance. Their military music will also give atmosphere to the occasion.

The program contains the names of much of our local talent, and the variety of it all, is appealing to those who like something different and not too much of one thing.

Tickets purchased will be helping the local soldier boys to raise a fund by which they wish to discharge a number of obligations.

TIMBER GROWING URGED BY STATE FORRESTER MERRILL

State Forester Fred B. Merrill Says Half of Mississippi Land Should Be So Utilized

Timber growing appears to be the only means of putting to good use at least half of the land area of Mississippi, in the opinion of Fred B. Merrill, state forester.

"This outlook is not dark," he said, "for timber supplies our leading manufacturing industries and always will be one of our important necessities." State Forester Merrill suggested timber growing on all Mississippi lands not now needed for other purposes.

"With such a program aggressively applied, it is easily conceivable that greater wealth and more employment can be assured for the future than has been obtained in the past from our forest industries," said Mr. Merrill.

SCHOOL AT KILN HAS OPENING

Father Fahey and G. R. Rea, Of Bay St. Louis, Speakers—Attendance Big.

Kiln Vocational High School opened its 1930-31 session Friday morning, August 15, under the most favorable auspices and in the presence of a large and representative gathering from Kiln and vicinity. E. E. Lumpkin, newly-elected superintendent, was on hand and directed the affairs of the occasion with his well-known ability and happy faculty.

Rev. Father Leo Fahey, of Bay St. Louis, was the principal speaker of the event, and his address marked the occasion well worthy of its importance and meaning. He dwelt on the necessity of an education; stressed the importance of mental development and alertness in these coming times of keen competition with men and things; and said not to be thus equipped for the battle of life gave life a poor aspect. Father Fahey drew fine and obvious comparisons, explained how well one was fitted for life equipped in the early days with that development that made for moral courage and doing.

George R. Rea, president Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, was the next speaker, and well did he stress on the point of thinking. He said education not only was a developing factor but fitted one to think. He said the trouble with the individual of the great mass was that people did not think. He had received a book recently, he said, and its title was "How To Think." He said he never had read a more illuminating work than this. It was pointed out that thinkers were in the last analysis the actual doers. His address, constructive, and well applied, was received with much applause which indicated it had been well received.

Supt. Lumpkin also made a few brief remarks and outlined the year's work and the purpose and aim of the Kiln Vocational High School. The school has eleven teachers, and although it was feared the attendance would suffer because of the closing of the sawmill at that place last winter, the enrollment far exceeded expectation. The outlook for a year of splendid work is encouraging.

CITY ASKING L. & N. NOT TO REMOVE OFFICE OF AUDITING DEPT. AWAY

Company Is Asked to Defer Action For Present at Least—Commission Council and Chamber of Commerce Take Action—Many Telegrams Sent.

Unofficial announcement made a few days ago to the effect that the entire divisional auditing department would be removed from Bay St. Louis to Montgomery, taking effect September 6, has aroused a mild storm of protest from those who represent the people and their best interests, the City Commission Council and Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce for instance.

On Monday the mayor and council met, and passed suitable resolutions asking that the L. & N. R. R. Company not take such steps for removal of its auditing department, as proposed, and telegrams from the council and individual officials locally and from over the State were at once dispatched to Active Vice President G. E. Evans, at Louisville.

Telegrams asking the L. & N. not to remove this department from Bay St. Louis were sent by Lt.-Gov. Bidwell Adam, Lester Franklin, chairman Mississippi Tax Commission; J. M. Morgan, President, Mississippi R. R. Commission, and Senator Pat Harrison and others, it was stated, would be asked to send similar telegrams. In fact an outpouring of protests, it was planned, would be wired from the State's highest executive down to the railroad company.

Chamber of Commerce Active.
On Tuesday morning President Rea called a special session of the executive committee to take up the matter and after due discussion it was resolved it would be better to ask the railroad company executives to defer at least, for the present, their plan to move away this office.

"As generally understood, the L. & N. is closing a similar office at Pensacola, and amalgamating this and the Bay St. Louis office with one at Montgomery, Ala. Pensacola, like Bay St. Louis, avowedly friendly to every interest pertaining to the 'Old Reliable,' rose in arms and a storm of protests went forth. For the time being, and indefinitely, the office will be retained at Pensacola, it was stated unofficially.

The official telegram from the Chamber of Commerce, addressed to G. E. Evans, executive vice president, Louisville, follows:

"We respectfully request that your railroad defer removal of the auditing department from Bay St. Louis. Our Association stands ready at anytime to aid and assist in all your undertaking. Our cooperation is assured."

The Chamber of Commerce, it was stated, will take up the matter further, exerting every influence to retain the department.

MISS. RIVER YIELDS OLD SKELETON

U. S. Officials Say Bones Of Englishman—Possibly Century Old

An Associated Press Telegram from Baton Rouge says the identity of a skeleton found buried in Mississippi river mud and believed to have been that of a naval officer of the last century, brought to light as a result of the low stage of the river, remained unestablished, save for the slim clue provided by a gold-hilted sabre found with the bones.

The sabre, of elaborate design, and heavily plated on hilt and scabbard with gold, bore the engraved name: "Jos. W. Morton." The type of the sword apparently dated it in the neighborhood of the Civil War, but a day's hunt through records of Federal and Confederate soldiers failed to throw any light on who "Jos. W. Morton" was, what his rank, or when and what cause he served.

Inquiries at the war department in Washington brought the information that no officer of that name was registered among the Federal forces of the sixties and a survey on incomplete Confederate records likewise showed no "Jos. W. Morton" in the official lists.

The field of possible identification, however, is admittedly wide, in view of the fact that seven flags have flown over this site, including the Fleur-de-Lis of the Bourbons, the Spanish pennant, West Florida republic, the tricolor of the Napoleonic France, the Independent standard and the Stars and Stripes of the U. S.

In addition, the British claimed and practically occupied the territory early in the last century.

Because of the sword's design, however, local authorities held that it was probably used in the Civil War, and generally accepted the theory that it belonged to a naval officer who lost his life in one of the many river encounters here during the War between the States, perhaps in the celebrated attack of Admiral Farragut before which the state capital fell in 1862.

The body and sword were found by P. W. Broussard, local river veteran, while he was taking advantage of the low stage to salvage a barge of coal sunk directly in front of the city about thirty years ago. He said that the Mississippi was today at its lowest stage in twenty years, and named this phenomenon as the reason for the body and sword being found today, caught firm in deep-rooted mud, and held there probably more than a century, some twenty feet below the swift current of the river at normal stage.

VOTERS TO DO MORE THINKING.

The Echo is in full and hearty agreement with the Southern Sentinel, one of Mississippi's best edited newspapers, when it says: "The folks who pay the bills are rapidly losing interest in factional fuses. Indications now are that Mississippi voters are going to do more thinking in the next twelve months than they have in the past twelve years. And it's a good sign. The darkest hour is just before dawn."

WILL THEY RUN ON THEIR MERITS?

Since the big political pow-wow up at the Winston county fair a fortnight since, the several gubernatorial candidates seem to have quieted down, and we are wondering if they have waked up to the fact that the voters of the State are going to elect their next governor solely on his merit and qualifications.

THE WAGES OF SIN

That 27-year-old teller of the First National Bank of Laurel, Miss., who absconded with $71,000 of the bank's cash about two weeks since, seems to have made a good get-away for the time being, but it is a safe bet that he will be caught before very long. Little enjoyment will he get out of the rich haul he made.

If even a little bit of what the candidates for governor of Mississippi say about each other is true, then not one of the bunch is fit for the office.

We see it stated that a cabbage weighing 39 pounds was grown in Ireland. If true, that was some cabbage head, but we would have to see it before believing it.

A newspaper publisher and two other men are under arrest at Jacksonville, Florida, charged with an alleged conspiracy against the life of Governor Doyle E. Carlton of that State.

It seems that "tree sitting" endurance tests" are still a popular pastime among the youths of our country. But like other foolish, non-sensical fads it will soon run its course.

Old Tom Heflin of Alabama was in an automobile wreck last week and he will be in another and worse one in November when the result of the senatorial election is announced.

A gain of 29 wet votes is assured in the next congress if what the president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is correct in his estimate. And as time rolls along we believe there will be enough representatives at Washington to repeal the most obnoxious piece of legislation ever enacted to control the liberties of a free people.

Helen Wills Moody was bequeathed $20,000 by the late James D. Phelan, former United States senator from California, in appreciation of her winning the national tennis championship and now some of the officials of the tennis association urge that acceptance of the legacy would jeopardize her standing as an amateur champion. Go ahead, Helen, take the twenty-thousand and smackers.

By a vote of "193 to 67, in secret conference," the bishops of the Anglican church, gathered in England from all over the world, have "with-drawn objection to birth control," so we learn from reading one of Arthur Brisbane's contributions to the daily press. He is eminently correct in his comment that withdrawal of such objection is "surprising to all, and shocking to many non-Anglican bishops."

An Alabama deputy sheriff is being held under $5,000 bond, fixed by the United States commissioner, on a charge of accepting bribes from an alleged bootlegger. We have often heard it asserted that almost every man has a price, and since the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment and heard of so many officials "making a little easy money" we are inclined to think that there is something in the assertion.

The doors of business establishments of every description in Laurel, Miss., remained closed Sunday pursuant to an order of the city's mayor, and even the people who craved a cold drink, a smoke or tank of gasoline were compelled to go out in surrounding country in order to gratify their wants and needs. Doubtless agitation for enforcement of the puritanical statutes was started by a little bunch of fanatical "goody-goodies."

Mrs. William Haub, 59 years of age, one of the hundreds of excursionists from New Orleans last Sunday, fell beneath the train at Biloxi and her body was so badly mangled that death was instantaneous. She alighted from the train for the purpose of selling her excursion ticket and when the train started to move she was warned not to attempt boarding it, but pulled away from the party who tried to detain her and as she made an effort to get aboard her foot slipped and she fell beneath the wheels.

STATE RESEARCH COMMISSION

The personnel of the State Research Commission has been announced and its membership is made up of real men and women, twenty-five in number, every one of whom is a loyal and patriotic citizen whose only thought in the labor they are to perform will be for the advancement of their beloved commonwealth.

The committee to whom was delegated the power of appointing the commission was composed of Governor Theo. G. Bilbo, Lieutenant-Governor Bidwell Adam, Speaker Thomas L. Bailey and Mr. R. B. Clark, chairman of the commission. In selecting the members of the commission, no section of the State was shown any preference and the men and women chosen were named simply for the reason that they are especially fitted to perform the task assigned them. Every interest is represented, banking, manufacturing, agriculture, education, professional and all else. Factional differences were forgotten by the appointing committee, and that fact alone should entitle the committee to the thanks and praise of every Mississippian who has the best interest and future prosperity of the State at heart.

The legislature at its last session appropriated $150,000 State funds, which is to be matched by an equal amount contributed by the counties, cities and private interests, for the purpose of defraying the cost of the research commission. It was doubtless the biggest and best piece of legislation enacted by the lawmakers in many, many years. Mississippi has lagged behind all her sister States in the matter of development of her resources, both natural and material, and the question of "What's The Matter With Mississippi" has been discussed for years, but no satisfactory explanation has ever been forthcoming. Everybody knows that the State is not lacking in any material or natural advantages which should hold back her development in as great a degree as that of her sister States. With its labors completed, the Research Commission will make answer to that mooted question.

NEW TARIFF LAW INJURING EXPORT TRADE

The Smooth-Hawley tariff bill, recently approved by President Hoover, is proving that it isn't going to help the export trade of this country.

Senator Connally of Texas, who just returned from Europe, is quoted as saying there was "a distinct feeling in Europe that enactment of the tariff bill will seriously injure the export trade of the United States. The view of most Europeans is that they cannot buy from us unless they are enabled to sell to us. Their feeling seemed to crystallize in the thought that our new tariff law will make it increasingly difficult for European nations to trade with the United States." Despite the fact that such would be the case as argued by opponents of the bill while it was up for passage, the administration urged its enactment, and when the next campaign is waged it will be used as a bludgeon to oust the Republican party from power. The harm resulting from the law will be more apparent and glaring after it has been in effect two years from now and the American people will be ready to put the stamp of their disapproval on the iniquitous law.

PREEMINENTLY QUALIFIED

The Hattiesburg American has nothing but praise for the men and women who have been appointed to membership on the State Research Commission, and in its comment on the appointments had the following to say of Justice Griffith, every word of which The Echo endorses:

"Associate Justice Virgil A. Griffith of the Mississippi Supreme Court is the outstanding student of the law in Mississippi today. His work as an author, his services as a codifier of Mississippi's statutes, his unwillingness to bow supinely before 'the god of things as they are' qualify him preeminently for service on a body which is to study our entire governmental structure."

DEFYING THE GOVERNMENT

Governor Bilbo says he will not call the legislature into session again unless he is assured that favorable action will be taken on his pet measure—the establishment of a State printing plant. He is perfectly willing for Mississippi to lose the $1,750,000 federal aid for the State's highways simply because the legislature will not accede to his wishes in the matter of enacting his pet hobby. We confess that Theodore has sorely disappointed his friends and foes by his pig-headed stubbornness.

FEDERAL AID TO BE WITHHELD.

The government at Washington has announced that the $340,000 appropriation allotted to Mississippi will be withheld unless the appointment of Prof. J. Lee Denson as head of the farm extension forces of the State is not abrogated and another is appointed better qualified to take his place. Governor Bilbo states that he intends to stand by Denson and when the State appropriation for the service is exhausted the work can all be discontinued. Just another exhibition of Theodore's desire to have his own way, no matter how it hurts the commonwealth.

INFLUENCE OF POWER TRUST.

Defeat of Frederick I. Thompson in the Alabama Democratic senatorial primary last week furnishes proof of the fact that the power trust has a strangle-hold on that State. His opponent, Senator Bankhead, has for years been one of the men who has prevented the operation and full development of the great Muscle Shoals project either by the government or private interests.

Those St. Louis aviators should be satisfied with breaking the endurance flight record. They were "off the earth" for exactly 647 hours, 38 minutes and 30 seconds. It is a record for other ambitious fliers to shoot at, and there will be a number willing to risk their lives to exceed it.

LOCAL SIDELIGHTS

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS POTENT INFLUENCE.

Doubting Thomases, holding back substantial favor from Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce have frequent evidences of the necessity of such organization for this section.

The Chamber of Commerce is well the clearing house for Bay St. Louis. Any movement calculated to benefit the city and county is at once sponsored by this organization and results attained. The individual could not muster numbers or master strength in "feu of organized effort," neither could the single effort command the attention or regard.

It will be noted in the news columns of The Echo this week how the Chamber of Commerce, and the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club, co-ordinating, set its organized machinery to work the instant it became known the L. & N. railroad company had decided to remove from this city to Montgomery its division auditing offices. Without losing time nor sparing effort the initiative was taken in the matter Wednesday and on the morning following a representative of the Chamber of Commerce was off to Louisville, duly armed with documents such as petitions and pledges for a personal interview with the powers that be. It might be well to better support our Chamber of Commerce and extend its usefulness. It is no secret the auditing office in this city means an annual payroll of $75,000.00.

A CITIZEN WHO IS EVER READY TO SERVE.

It is refreshing to note with what willingness and readiness E. J. Gex, resident attorney, was willing to be drafted to go to Louisville that night and work in the interest of the city retaining L. & N. Division auditing offices. When the committee of two calling on Mr. Gex stated they wished he would leave that night for the distant city and told him of the mission, he did not hesitate or say how busy he was and that it would almost be impossible for him to leave on so short notice, but like the citizen who is weighed and not found wanting he readily expressed his willingness to go, and went. Mr. Gex said the Chamber of Commerce represented the very best progressive spirit of city and county and that he was ready to serve at any time and under any and all conditions.

SERVES CHURCH AS COLLECTOR OVER THIRTY YEARS.

Continuously serving as church collector at services every Sunday and on week-day religious days few have a record of thirty-two years of continuous and uninterrupted services.

Such record is that of Charles Hillen, residing in St. Louis, who has served in this capacity, and while he carries the weight of seventy-five years on his shoulders he is ready and most probably will serve quite a number of years to come in continuous capacity. Mr. Hillen is a member of the Woodmen of the World and also a member of local council of Pere LeDuc Council, Knights of Columbus, and also belongs to other societies, always taking an active interest in the things that serve best for the moral and uplift side of life.

It is also noted, a carpenter by trade, he has served the community of St. Joseph's Academy in his working capacity for practically the same number of years. These evidences of steadiness and dependability go to illustrate the fine character and integrity of the man, and the hope is expressed he will continue to long live in our midst and continue adding to his usefulness.

WAVELAND ESTATES IS FINE SUB-DIVISION.

Visitors to Waveland view with much pleasure and general satisfaction the success of "Waveland Estates," the Coast's newest and handsomest subdivision which has built up in possibly a year's time, comparatively speaking, more than any other enterprise of the kind hereabouts.

Credit for this is due R. Terrell Perkins, live wire, really man of New Orleans and Bay St. Louis, who suggested and Mr. Steele original owner of the tract of land and who put the project over in great shape.

A wide avenue was first laid out, width essential to ultimate success, then lots were sold to a better class of people—people who were not buying to speculate or attempting to get rich overnight, but honest-to-goodness home builders, and dwellings of the better kind constructed. Mr. Perkins gave substantial evidence of the project in not only purchasing one of the lots, but substantiated his confidence in building a home for his own occupancy.

There is a home-like atmosphere about Waveland Estates that is compelling; the setting amid shady and sturdy oaks, with stately pines forming a background that intrigues the finer senses and appeals to good judgment. The immediate future is promising and well may one look forward to a continuation of the beautiful and substantial homes that already have well begun the line on both sides of the avenue.

MENTAL ATTITUDE MAKES OR BREAKS.

A speaker before Bay Rotarians Wednesday well illustrated the fact from psychological reasoning that much of the feeling of the present depressed business condition was due to mental attitude into which the average man and woman has allowed himself to fall. He said the gold and silver of the country was not any less than formerly when we boasted of our prosperity; that resources had not shrunk and that it was a fact we had more population than formerly. People lived, circumspect and were as active as ever, but because the abnormal business of things had slowed down a little, we had allowed ourselves to fall into a mental attitude that was devastating our very senses of things and demoralizing even our vision of the future. He pointed out it was necessary to retrain the thinking condition, to become more animated in the pursuit of things, and in the vernacular.

ANENT PRICE OF GASOLINE

Waveland, Miss., Aug. 16, 1930.

Editor Sea Coast Echo:

As a subscriber to your paper, and being a resident and large tax payer in this community, I have decided to address you on the subject of high retail gasoline costs in Hancock and neighboring counties of Mississippi. Just recently as evidenced by the enclosed press clipping we have witnessed a very successful war in favor of lower costs to resident and transient consumers at Slidell, and it occurs to me that if this small town can accomplish such a worthwhile cut, that proper authority set in motion in our own midst could successfully bring the price range as between Slidell and the Coast within closer range. It is well to note the difference in price in New Orleans and Slidell and other towns in Louisiana, including TAX in both states to that in our Coast counties.

This difference of nearly nine cents cannot be laid to the costs of transportation which the producers may claim. With water, rail and road facilities such claims cannot be supported, and with the retailer claiming that he does not benefit, the only conclusion is reached that of price agreement between the five or more separate corporations doing business in our State. This I believe is against the law. The price of 23½ cents at filling stations is intolerable and should be investigated by your city and state authorities. With this price prevailing for so long, no wonder we hear of bootleg gasoline, and know that many tourists avoid coming to visit our shores while many others who do take this expensive chance fill up on the borders, and if they remain only buy enough to take them out to a point where they can buy much cheaper. I am fearful if something is not done to remedy this situation an increase in our property tax must follow to take care of road bonds.

I feel that if this matter is urgently stressed in your paper and other Coast papers some good will follow.

Yours very truly,

C. WHARTON COLLENS.

Clipping referred to hereinabove was carried in New Orleans Times-Picayune as a press telegram under head, "Gas Price Parity Brought Nearer," and is here given:

Slidell, La., Aug. 7.—Gasoline price parity was brought a step nearer for the organized retail dealers of Slidell Thursday when the Standard Oil Company posted a 2½-cent reduction on tank wagon gas for their contract stations. Up until today, the tank wagon price has been steadily maintained at 14½ cents per gallon. The new quotation reads 12½ cents per gallon for tank wagon gasoline.

The latest price slash will not affect the Standard "lease stations" which all along have retailed the fuel at the 14½-cent tank wagon price, while the "contract stations" were forced to sell at 16½ cents. By noon Thursday the Gulf Company had met the reduction, and Texas company and Pan-Am distributors were momentarily expecting orders from headquarters to follow the lead of the Standard.

For the first time since the gas war began three weeks ago the contract dealers were smiling Thursday, feeling that they had won a substantial concession from the major oil companies. It is conceded on every side that the cut in price from 19 cents to 14½ cents per gallon has gone a long way toward saving the local business situation. It is reported that the tank wagon men are working at night to keep the pumps supplied, whereas 30 days ago they were practically idle.

to go after it with a sharp stick. And this speaker, the Pep-logue Man, was right no one will gainsay.

Waveland, assuredly, shows more substantial growth and enterprise, within the past year than any one town on the Gulf Coast, possibly in South Mississippi.

The Western timber interest point with pride to the fact that the protected area of growing pines is adding asset to the country's wealth at a rate that nothing else can compare. The young trees, millions in number, were growing at an apparent rate like never before and that it would be only a matter of a few years when a wealth of timber would again cover the spaces of Hancock county.

A lover of flowers and adept gardener from Pass Christian who visits here frequently, writes calling attention to the advantages of cutting tops of poinsettia plants now growing to tall and barren. "Cut liberally from the top," says the communication, and many more shoots from the parent stalk will mean that many more flowers for Christmas-tide. The present month, continues the letter is the time to plant cuttings. These will also bloom for the holidays.

A private letter from an authoritative source says it is expected there will be more visitors from Chicago and vicinity on the Gulf Coast than ever. The Edgewater Gulf already has a low, positive and tentative list of registrations for the winter.

BILBO'S DETERMINATION TO PUT DENTON OVER WILL JEOPARDIZE FUNDS

Governor's Appointee to Federal Department Objectionable to Extent of Reprisal—Will People Continue To Pay Fiddler.

Notwithstanding the decision of the United States Department of Agriculture to disapprove the selection of Lee Denton as head of the agricultural extension forces in Mississippi to succeed R. S. Wilson, Gov. Bilbo seems determined to carry on the fight to place his political friend in charge of this important branch of the state government. Information has reached Starkville that Gov. Bilbo advised Mr. Denton to move his family to the A. & M. College and get ready to go to work on September 1, and that "I will show those damn yankees in Washington who are running Mississippi."

The Board of Trustees who elected Denton at the Governor's suggestion, have evidently awakened to the type of man whom they tried to place in this responsible position and it is not believed that they will back up the governor in his desire to force Denton into the office. Mr. A. B. Kelly of Yazoo, a member of the board of trustees, in an interview Monday said, "If Denton does not resign on demand, I believe the board will take steps to rescind its action in electing him."

It is expected that the board of trustees will meet the latter part of the week to thrash out the Denton matter, along with several other matters pertaining to A. & M. college and the University. Several vacancies are to be filled, some of these vacancies having occurred by resignations of those who were elected at the instigation of Bilbo and others not having been filled by the board after the incumbents had been fired by the board of trustees at Bilbo's demand.

Should Gov. Bilbo and the board of trustees persist in their demands that Denton be placed at the head of the agricultural extension department, the federal government will withdraw its financial support and the people will lose $340,000. The legislature appropriated a like sum of $340,000 for agricultural extension work and it is the opinion of many lawyers that the state appropriation is contingent upon its being matched by federal funds and unless it is so matched, it will not be available for that purpose. Therefore, the agricultural extension department will cease to function and the farmers of Mississippi will not have the benefit of any of the agricultural departments now operating out of A. & M. college.

Discontinuing the operation of the agricultural extension department of A. & M. college will mean that automatically 68 county agricultural agents and five supervisors, 54 women county home demonstration agents and nine women state officials will cease their work. In addition to these the following other employees and officials of that department must necessarily quit: Fifteen clerical workers, five boys' club workers, two forestry men, two community organizers, four dairy workers, three horticulturists, two animal husbandry workers, three agricultural engineers, four marketing specialists, three poultry specialists, three experimental workers, eleven officials and assistants, eighteen negro home demonstration workers and twenty-four negro county agents and supervisors.

The agricultural extension department has been built to a high degree of efficiency and has been of untold help to the farmers. Its discontinuance just now, at a time when the

Wife of Hotel Manager Dies Following Operation For Appendicitis

Mrs. Hilda Negrotto, 36, wife of A. J. Negrotto, manager of Hotel Markham, died at Gulfport Saturday. She was a native of New Orleans. She leaves a husband, one daughter, parents, three sisters and one brother. The body was taken to New Orleans Saturday afternoon for burial.

Mrs. Negrotto underwent an operation for appendicitis only a few days previously and died as a result of the after effects. She was a woman endowed with a wealth of fine attributes, of marked nobility of character and her passing away removes an unusually fine woman. Mr. Negrotto has the general and genuine sympathy of a coastwide number of friends as well as in New Orleans.

crops are bad, would mean a disorganization of agricultures in Mississippi which could not be overcome for many years. However, this does not seem to affect the attitude of Gov. Bilbo towards this important department of the state government. He is maintaining an adamant position. Consistent with his position on other policies which he tried to put over during his administration. Should he succeed in retaining Denton in the position to which he has been selected, it can mean nothing but the entire loss of the agricultural extension department and the farmers and club boys and girls will again pay for the folly of a man.

While the report of Mr. Warburton, representing the federal department, has not been made public, it is believed that the information given him relative to the reputation and character of Lee Denton checked correctly. Mr. Warburton made an exhaustive investigation in the section where Mr. Denton had been superintendent of the Perkinston agricultural school.

COAST STARS WIN AGAIN, SCORE 11-6

By winning over the Bingham team in their game Sunday, the Coast Stars ran the number of games won up to 14 and 4 lost during the season.

With the Boudin-Bontemps combination the former catching and the latter playing second base, not one Bingham player attempted to steal second during the game.

One hit and three errors gave the Bingham nine their six runs. O. V. Spikes, Gulfport star, was chased from the mound in the second inning when the Coast Stars made seven runs.

The Coast Stars will play the strong Gulfport Pirates next Sunday on Slick's diamond. The Pirates are the Gulfport city champions among independent teams, and the Coast Stars are the Bay St. Louis city champions among the same type of teams, therefore this should be an unusually good game.

Summary of Sunday's game:

Three base hits—Pechue for Bingham; Boudin and Collier for the Coast Stars.

Struck out by Spikes 1.

Struck out by F. Favre, 7.

Struck out by M. Maurer, 15.

JACKSON SOLON HAS PLANS FOR STATE TO REALIZE ROAD FUNDS

Senator Taylor of Jackson Urges Extra Session In Order to Procure Needed Relief.

Believing that the governor should assemble the legislature in extraordinary session to provide a plan for financing an already approved statewide road building program, Senator W. N. Taylor, Jackson, today submitted a compromise proposal through which he estimates the state would secure $10,500,000 to begin the huge program.

Senator Taylor's compromise follows:

A five million dollar bond issue for road and bridge construction.

A six cent gasoline excise tax to be disbursed four cents to the state and two cents to the counties.

The automobile privilege tax to remain as it now is, the proceeds to go to the counties as under the present law.

Allotment of the four cent gas tax to the state as follows: one cent for bond interest and sinking fund; one and one-half cents for road construction and one and one-half cents for road bridge construction.

Under the above outlined proposal, Senator Taylor estimates there will be available for road construction during the next 18 months the following sums:

Bond issue, $5,000,000; federal government, $1,850,000; one and one-half cents gas tax, $1,650,000.

"The proposal herein outlined represents a real compromise," said Senator Taylor.

"The governor gives up something he wants. The legislature gives up something and the senate gives up something."

"Everybody lays aside selfishness, dogmatism and stubbornness and the people of the state get a road building program under way," said the senator.

"It is true," he added, "the next administration will face an unpaid outstanding road bond issue of three and one quarter million dollars, but it is equally true that they will have ten and a half million dollars worth of roads already paved for which they will have to make no provision."

"The adoption of some sort of compromise legislation means the immediate inauguration of a comprehensive road building program," he continued. "It means also the employment of thousands of people who are now out of work and without means of supporting their families. It means paved highways eighteen months, perhaps two years, sooner than if we stand by and do nothing."

Once upon a time you could only see bare limbs when the leaves came off the trees in the fall—Brookhaven Leader. But just think how much more pleasing to the eye are those bare limbs we see now exposed to public view.

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

(Yazoo Sentinel)

Governor Bilbo and his disciples are riding to a hard fall. Out of the shadows of obscurity some "dark horse" in the political affairs of the state will come forward in the near future to break the fetters of democracy that this despot of democracy has so skillfully forged.

From a prosperous, free people of fifteen years ago, the citizens of our commonwealth are now virtually under the yoke of penance, so heavily have they become taxed under the regime of Bilbo. Our property owners are paying, in practically all parts of the state, twice the amount of ad valorem taxes paid in other states, with little or no state improvement to show for it; our highways are in a deplorable condition and the newly elected Highway Commission is without funds to carry out improvement and maintenance plans, yet we have one of the heaviest gasoline taxes in the country. Our business firms are taxed from every conceivable angle until they are burdened almost to the breaking point to pay this "tribute to Caesar." Our teachers, though poorly paid, often find it difficult to cash their warrants, so low has the credit of the state sunk, but with this embarrassing condition existing there is no let-up—the "dear people" are squeezed under and more taxes, the benefits of which, are difficult to see. Each campaign year the politician, with his brass-lunged oratory, cries from the platform that, if elected, he will surely bring lower taxes, but alas, when he dons the royal purple the constituents are forgotten, along with his campaign promises.

This condition cannot continually exist. There is a breaking point somewhere along the line. A burdened people will stand just so much, before they rise in wrath to throw off these leeches of the commonwealth. Already the condition has existed too long. Our sister states are pointing the finger of ridicule at Mississippi and wondering why we tolerate such conditions.

Our people have been lethargic. We have meekly submitted to our lot, but in 1931 the opportunity to cast aside factionalism by washing the slate clean and putting into office men of integrity, capable of conducting the state's business, and whose very name is synonymous with honesty. Then, citizens of Mississippi, let us march forward once more on the road of progress.

Appeal Is Drawn For Young Man Convicted In Pop Bottle Slaying

An appeal to the Mississippi Supreme Court was perfected Tuesday for Gulfport by attorneys Leonard W. Thompson, 19, Shawnee, Okla., hitch hiker, sentenced to life imprisonment here Saturday for the murder of Frank A. Webb, Jr., 33, New Orleans lumber inspector. The principal ground for appeal was failure of Circuit Judge Walter A. White to sustain a motion for peremptory instruction in favor of the defendant at the close of the state's testimony.

Pale and Weak

"I think Cardui is a wonderful medicine, for I improved greatly after taking it," says Mrs. A. W. English, of R. F. D. 4, Roanoke, Va. "When I was just a girl of 13, my mother gave this medicine to me, and it did me a great deal of good. I was weak and run-down. After I had taken Cardui awhile, I felt much better. In 1924, my health was poor. I felt miserable, and hadn't enough strength to do my housework. It took all my willpower to keep up. I was pale and weak. I got Cardui again and took it. My improvement was wonderful. I can recommend Cardui to others, for my health was so much better after I had taken a course of the Cardui Home Treatment."

SCUPPERNONGS ARE RIPE AND PLENTIFUL AT BROWN'S VINEYARD

Famous Resort, Known to Two Generations, Has Plentiful Crop of Delicious Grape and Many Gather at Brown's These Days.

Scuppernong, that native grape of sweet piquancy, is at its best just at present. At Brown's Vineyard, out on the Spanish Trail, near Bay St. Louis, the great arbors with hundreds of vines are burdened with the green and bronze-colored grape, the latter color positive indication that the grape is ripe and at its sweetest stage. It is quite a sight to the unacquainted. Many tourists passing through stop and view possibly a sight not seen elsewhere.

Brown's Vineyard Famous.

Albert C. Brown, and his wife, have acquired the place from the parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Brown, who two generations ago planted the vines and ever since the place has become famous over the country for famous "Brown's Wine," and locally for its scuppernong. The son and his wife have continued the conduct of the place with all its tradition and charm. It is the same, in days gone by, when the place was a resort for many who were not prevented by the Volsteadian edict from drinking the zesty, health-giving and delicious vintage.

What Prohibition Did.

Prohibition has precluded the further making of wine, but Mr. Brown now manufactures from the scuppernong what is and which he terms pure juice. This has no alcoholic content and is as pure and delicious as possibly could be. This is sold at the Vineyard either in bottles or served in the country home pavilion by glass or any quantity desired. Many visitors and others visit the place, enjoy the atmosphere of this country estate, bask in the sunshine of Mrs. Brown's cheery and most cordial attention and quaff the juice of the scuppernong, either as one would drink a glass of sparkling Burgundy or refresh one's self with a beverage.

To visit the Bay-Waveland section and not visit Brown's would be like the play of Hamlet with the Dane gone home and say, "I have been to Bay St. Louis but did not go to Brown's."

Public May Purchase Scuppernong.

Since the manufacture of alcoholic wine has been discontinued and only has been manufactured, the management sell a liberal percentage of scuppernongs every summer during the time of crop bearing, a privilege which the public formerly did not enjoy. One may purchase a pint, quart, gallon or barrel of the little single grape, at any amount, at will. The prices are right and one can purchase liberally without spending much.

The scuppernong is at its best—most prolific—just now. A visit to Brown's should not be deferred. Individuals as well as parties are the order of the day visiting Brown's famous scuppernong orchards.

FOOD AND FEED

Drought and heat have curtailed production of foodstuffs for man and beast to an alarming degree. South Mississippi is in far better shape than other sections of this commonwealth and infinitely better off than the middle west, where cattle must be sold or slaughtered before winter due to a scarcity of the necessary provisions.

Importance of growing food stuffs at home is emphasized afresh by the publicity given the effects of the exceptional drought which still has the fact that food crops are more or less a failure this year, simply must not deter farmers from planting a diversity of products next season. This year the need for food and feed is made more manifest than ever. Next year and in all the years to come, our goal must be the production of more than enough to satisfy our own needs. Cotton is all right perhaps as a surplus cash crop but poultry and produce, cows and cow peas, fruits and vegetables, milk and dairy products must still be produced at home if agriculture is to live and prosper.—Hattiesburg American.

The shrimp season is now open and the packing plants at Biloxi and other coast points have sent their hundreds of boats out to make catches. It means employment at good wages for a great number of people and very soon thousands of dollars will be put in circulation to help to business and industry in our neighboring towns.

CLERMONT HARBOR IS FASTEST-GROWING SECTION ON COAST

Many Improvements and Activity of Realty Values Makes This Fact Imminent

If not the fastest growing section on the coast, then surely Clermont Harbor is one of the fastest. On every side there is evidence of building and demand for lots continues at a rate that sustains value.

The Improvement Association is active and represents the best interest of that section. Its promoters plan many things for this community or village which will soon grow to proportions of a town, and then possibly to a city.

Harbor Inn is the big asset here, besides fine fishing, golf bathing, pure air, sea breezes and close proximity to the metropolitan center of New Orleans. Among the guests at Harbor Inn just now are Italian Consul di Rossi and his wife, of New Orleans, who have returned from an extensive summer tour and are resting and enjoying the marvelous golf coast. They plan to lease a house in the Bay section and remain until fall.

Construction of dwellings is always a new and substantial evidence of progress and growth. At Clermont Harbor this evidence is noted on every side.

Charles Jenkins, who purchased three lots of 150 by 150 on Clermont Boulevard, has just completed an attractive brick bungalow. This is on the main boulevard and attracts attention of a fair who go by.

N. J. Cerise purchased a lot on Forrest avenue, near the beach, and is completing an attractive home. Mr. Cerise is from New Orleans and has an abiding faith in Clermont. This is best proven by the way he is backing it.

Another home on Forrest avenue is that of Mr. Cefau, just completed, also the stucco bungalow of H. C. Carr, on Third near Clermont Boulevard is finished. Stucco promises to be the more popular type of home, borrowed originally from the Spanish and tremendously popular in California sections where beauty, wealth and values gather.

L. Green has completed his home on Forrest near Railroad avenue. Other lot purchasers who bought sites at Clermont Harbor for summer homes are R. Dannenberg, who purchased a home site on Bordage street. John M. Danneker purchased a home site on Bordage street, adjoining the Dannenberg's site. The summer growth of Clermont Harbor this season has been far in excess of any year and the outlook for the immediate future was never more promising.

William A. Shambley bought a home site on Oak street. Two lots 100 feet, facing Clermont Boulevard, were sold to Mr. Pittolo, who will construct a home immediately. The sales total $7,000.

As a comment on the type of buildings now in vogue at Clermont it is noted that the camp type of structure which at first were seemingly popular is being displaced by a type of the better kind, more permanent, increasing proportions and with better architecture. The day of building summer camps and overnight make-shifts is a thing of the past. Better land and selling values displaces these.

The price for clothing may not be falling, but bathing suit shoulder straps are always coming down.—Jackson Daily News.

A verdict of one cent and costs was given in favor of Miss Mary Tatalano of Baltimore when she sued Charles Brown of Belair, Md., $10,000 for breach of promise.

MAJORITY OF COUNTY SCHOOLS NOW OPEN FOR 1930-31 SESSION

Supt. Everett Reports Enrollment Exceeds That of Former Years.

All county schools except Gulf View, Edwardsville, Dedeaux and Logtown opened on the 15th of August. The above named schools will open on September 12th.

The majority of the schools opened with the largest enrollment in several years and everything looks fair to be a very successful school year. Mr. Everett reports that there are only two or three teachers in the county with less than two years of college training.

Hancock county has the distinction of being in the best financial condition regarding their schools of any poor county in the State.

Poultry and Egg Industry Continued Should Prove One of Much Profit

Perhaps at no time in this county and section as last spring was the pursuit of poultry and egg industry carried on such an extensive scale, and it might be safely said the effort proved one of interest and pecuniary profit as well.

Like all things else this industry has its season and with the advent of hot weather the lull set in. With fall at hand the thought runs back again to the industry and a well-known local poultryman, speaking to the Echo, expressed it as his opinion that to abandon the work or to even slacken one's efforts would be taking a step backwards. "On the contrary," he continued, "On the contrary, in the ultimate one must keep at it like intense farming, to continue from season to season without interruption and to expand, thus profiting by the experience gained and adding to that already accomplished." The hope is expressed the industry will be pursued with as much interest and activity as was exhibited by our people this early spring, and later season.

MAURICE CHEVALIER IS PAST MASTER OF ART OF FINESSE

Idol of the Screen is Tremendously Popular With Fair Sex and Art Colony

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles.—Maurice Chevalier can be emotional and sentimental in public and still have the crowd cheering for him. He is the only man I have ever seen either on or off the screen who could express himself with the sentiment of a woman and still keep his own personality.

Chevalier, with that fascinating accent of his and that merry twinkle in his eye, stood in the presence of hundreds of people at the farewell party given for him in the blossom room at the Roosevelt hotel and publicly kissed Douglas Fairbanks.

Chevalier said he wanted to kneel to "Queen Mary Pickford." "It is the first time," he said, "I have ever knelt to any one but I want to kneel to this little actress, the greatest of them all" and even on his knees he didn't look foolish.

I don't know another man who could have expressed his sincere affection for his friends in this manner without being ridiculed. Mr. Fairbanks was so embarrassed when Chevalier announced that he wanted to kiss him in French fashion it looked for a fleeting moment as if he would refuse Chevalier's invitation.

At the moment it was easy to understand why Chevalier has walked off with the honors of being probably the most popular male star on the screen. One cannot analyze Chevalier's astonishing popularity. He is not handsome. Dozens of other players have better voices but there isn't any actor who can compare with him when it comes to personality. He radiates charm. He is so alive, so happy and so friendly. There is nothing of the snob about him. Being the idol of the American public has not given him an exaggerated opinion of his own position.

No foreign player, not even Greta Garbo, has ever come so close to the heart of the American public. Chevalier is eager to please. He is warm, affectionate and appreciative. Greta doesn't care if she ever receives a fan letter. She doesn't care if any one in Hollywood ever speaks to her. In fact, she prefers a solitary existence without the annoyance of non-welcome attentions.

Greta's popularity is based solely on her screen personality. I doubt if she would rate half the adoration were she to come in actual contact with her fans. Chevalier, on the other hand, is more loved and more popular every time he appears in public. The world is interested in Greta principally because she creates an illusion and every one loves mystery.

Chevalier's place as an idol is not, however, won solely on his winning ways. He is an artist even though his voice is not operatic in quality.

He gives as a part of his entertainment at his farewell party a series of imitations. The only thing that has ever approached these caricatures are the old time impersonations of Elsie Janis.

Mr. Chevalier chose as his subjects certain well-known French actors. He said he would put English into the mouths of these Frenchmen who could only speak French. He sang could only speak French. He sang such natural comedy that he was called back again and again.

His answer to the applause was that these actors would all make good on the screen if they could only speak English.

I doubt if what Mr. Chevalier said is true. We have had dozens of foreign actors but we have only one Chevalier and only one Greta Garbo. Now, we are told to make way for a third whirlwind sensation, Marlene Dietrich. If she is what the Paramount executives promise, perhaps with only equal Chevalier and Garbo, but she will have a long way to go to become as firmly entrenched in the affections of this fickle public of ours.

—After spending a while here, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kramer have returned to their home in Chicago, after visiting at the home of Mrs. Kramer's mother, Mrs. F. J. Landry, in State street.

—The time to buy is when prices are reduced. Mauffray's Store offers the well-known Jantzen bathing suits at one-third price reduction.

—Miss Pat Smith left during the week for Houston, Texas, where she is visiting a brother and spending a period of vacation from her secretarial duties at the C. C. McDonald mercantile establishment.

—Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Olivari and accomplished young daughters are here from Houston, Texas, and are visiting at the home of Mr. Olivari's mother, Mrs. Fortune Olivari, on the South Beach Boulevard. The Misses Olivari are the recipients of many social courtesies while here.

—Mrs. P. E. Ray of New Orleans is spending a few days visiting Bay St. Louis friends and is the houseguest of her aunt, Mrs. A. R. Hart, and family, in Main street. Mrs. Ray, the former Miss Alma Adis is most pleasantly remembered as a frequent visitor here in former years.

—Miss Alcida Ladner, efficient local manager Bell Company, has returned from a week-end trip to her sister, Mrs. Roemer, and family, at New Orleans. Miss Mathilde Ladner, also visiting her sister in New Orleans, met with a painful accident Sunday morning when she fell and sprained an ankle.

Smith, for a visit at their beach home, have moved to their own delightful home on the banks of Jordan river, rear of Bay St. Louis, one of the city and loveliest places hereabouts.

—A reduction of one-third off all prices on Jantzen bathing suits at Mauffray's Store. There is quite a selection and this is an unusual opportunity to get a bathing suit at reduced prices.

—Mrs. R. A. Seller, and daughter, Miss Irene, returned home this week from a delightful three-week trip East, visiting New York City, Boston, Niagara, Washington and intermediate points. The ladies had a most interesting trip and enjoyed every moment of their itinerary.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Osoinach continue their visit to the home of their son, in Ohio, and await his arrival from a trip to Europe this summer. They plan to be back in Bay St. Louis some time during the latter part of next week. Mr. and Mrs. Osoinach recently toured the Pacific coast as far north as Vancouver.

—L. O. Crosby, millionaire lumberman and citizen of Picayune, was elected mayor over an opponent in election held Tuesday by an overwhelming majority. It is well that active and successful business men, men with fundamental ability and depth of thought be elected to executive public positions, and we hasten to congratulate Picayune. Mr. Crosby has announced he will accept no salary, and yet he is a busy man and time is worth much to him. It has been said that, as a rule, successful business men cannot be elected to office; that the proletariat will not countenance it. But the theory, evidently, has been thrown in the discard.

ON MAIN STREETPrize Winning Cockrels and Pullets Are Being Selected
From Flock

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Ward of Main street are growing again this year some excellent chickens of the Rhode Island variety. For several years they have shown at the fairs and poultry shows prize winning birds and the specimens this season are as good if not better than those of previous years. At present, cockrels and pullets of this spring's stock have been penned and are being held for the purpose of examination so that the very best of the flock may be selected for exhibition purposes. Some seven cockrels and about 35 pullets are being observed at this time. From these birds will be chosen.

Both the Cockaton and Harrison strains of Rhode Island birds are grown by Mr. and Mrs. Ward. There are on the yard some 100 other chickens besides the special stock now in pens. At the rear of the Ward home is found a modern poultry yard in which the chickens are grown.

Mrs. Walker was a woman of means and owned cotton plantations which she leased. She was well and prominently known in the community and her passing away removes an estimable woman.

The Bankruptcy Racket.

The general uprising of adverse sentiment is manifested on all sides towards the federal bankruptcy law which allows a man to repudiate his just and honest debts, and the hope is expressed the bankruptcy law as existing today will either be amended or repealed. Report to the bankruptcy law of today is all too frequent. The press of the State and country at large, in fact, is awakening to the fallacy of the law, and there is a general uprising against it. The Hattiesburg American says "bankrupts seem to have taken their place in the racket class, and there is to be a sweeping investigation by the United States Solicitor-General's offices. Changes in the bankruptcy act to prevent the abuses which have become prevalent will be recommended."

At present a concern can go through bankruptcy, write off its debts and start in all over again. Sometimes one firm is thus discharged two or three times.

That is an easy way to escape responsibility. The losses through bankruptcy are now averaging about $250,000,000 a year. Too much money is being taken out of the pocket

PROGRESSES WELL

Work on grading and leveling the north side of St. Stanislaus College stadium progresses well. This large space which was included in the original stadium some months ago and which is surrounded by the high building block wall was formerly leased to C. C. McDonald and a planing mill and storage of lumber plant was located there; but after the lease expired the mill was removed and the space included in the stadium.

A tractor was used to grade the new space and this is now being graded into shape to form a part of the large field.

This stadium is thought to be the largest in this section of the country and is adequate to accommodate the large crowds which gather during the football season to witness the interscholastic games played here.

ICE PLANT POPULAR

Quite the most popular place in the Bay at present is the Bay Ice and Bottling Works on Railroad avenue, for here the cars may be found parked awaiting their turn to be served with the cold material. Especially following the arrival in town of the afternoon trains the line of cars is lengthy before the plant, literally dozens of cars going to the station to secure passengers to go to their homes and many stopping at the ice house for the ice before going on homeward.
